Performance Standard

Standard of Accredited Specialist

The Standard of an Accredited Specialist in Commercial Litigation is that of a 'specially competent practitioner' in the core skills and practical capabilities in the selected area of practice, as assessed against the spectrum of capability of all practitioners in that area of practice. This standard is to be distinguished from the idea that the Scheme requires the highest technical legal knowledge across all aspects of the selected area of practice.

Important

Candidates are advised to read and familiarise themselves with the 2019 Guide to Application and Assessment which contains important information regarding application, process, resources and special consideration etc. This document can be found at: lawsociety.com.au/specialists

Timetable

The shaded area below shows the core assessment period including the dates associated with each assessment.

Candidates need to focus on this core assessment timeframe and plan their workload well in advance.

Based on feedback reports from previous years, candidates are encouraged to dedicate and manage their time during this period to optimise their performance across all assessment tasks.

Candidates are reminded that participating in the Specialist Accreditation program requires a considerable level of commitment if candidates are to achieve their desired outcome.

Core Skills and Knowledge Areas

Practitioners wishing to become an Accredited Specialist in Commercial Litigation should be able to:

- Display knowledge of the law and procedure which underpins the performance of tasks in the area of practice; and
- Perform the tasks below.

The tasks are neither exhaustive nor listed in strict number sequence.

Core Skills

1. Gathers facts and instructions

1.1 Elicits information

- Listens effectively to the client's description of the problem;
- Asks appropriate probing questions in order to identify each of the issues, whether factual or legal;
- Obtains the client's confirmation of the solicitor's comprehension of the problem;
- Ascertains the client's stated objectives and assists the client to formulate actual and achievable objectives; and
- Considers the resources the client and the solicitor are able and willing to allocate and discusses the method of costing any proposed action.

The process is guided by knowledge of the relevant areas of law and an understanding of other disciplines relevant to the client's problem. It is carried out in an objective manner.

1.2 Obtains information from other sources

- Knows what public information is available;
- Selectively institutes searches having regard to relevance and cost effectiveness, including searches of the records of the ASIC, the Australian Stock Exchange, Office of Fair Trading, Land and Property Information and court records;
- Promptly obtains all relevant documents and critically reads and analyses them;
- Pursues other identified sources for documents; and
- Refers client to other appropriately qualified experts such as accountants or financial advisors where applicable.

1.3 Interviews witnesses

- Objectively interviews thoroughly all potential witnesses by listening critically and effectively asks probing questions including by reference to relevant documents;
- Assists each witness to produce a structured and coherent statement; and
- Prepares statements which seek to include all relevant information in admissible form.

2. Conceives strategy

2.1 Develops options

- Considers and assesses the viability of litigation including:
 - Whether there is a prima facie cause of action or a defence;
 - Use of preliminary discovery to obtain information necessary to identify potential litigants and causes of action;
 - The prospects of success and recovery of damages and costs;
 - The solicitor's preparedness to certify to the Court that there are reasonable grounds for believing on the basis of provable facts and a reasonably arguable view of the law that the claim or the defence (as appropriate) has reasonable prospects of success for damages claims;
 - The appropriate forum;
 - The time that will be taken prior to a determination;
 - The commitment of the client;
 - The capacity to pay costs;
 - Any critical dates including whether any limitation periods have expired or are about to expire;
 - Whether there are any requirements for certifying that reasonable steps have been taken to attempt to settle the dispute; and
 - Whether there is the need for any urgent interlocutory relief, such as a freezing order or a search order.
- Considers and assesses the viability of non-litigious action including all methods of dispute resolution such as early neutral evaluation, mediation, direct negotiation or any requirement to do so.

2.2 Communicates options

- Provides the client with a meaningful costs disclosure which satisfies the requirements of the Legal Profession Uniform Law Application Act 2014 (NSW) and provides updated costs disclosures at appropriate stages of the matter;
- Provides clearly all possible options to the client;

- Ensures the client understands the rights, obligations and risks for each option and the reasons why some options may not be viable;
- Explains the process required by each option; and
- When making recommendations, takes into account the client's objectives, priorities and resources and basic categories or potential tax implications.

2.3 Obtains instructions

- Obtains instructions as to whether or not the client accepts the recommendations; and
- Confirms the instructions in writing.

3. Implements the plan

3.1 Drafts pleadings

- Analyses the facts and their relevance;
- Prepares pleadings in accordance with the rules of court;
- Ensures the pleadings reflect the client's instructions;
- Ensures the pleadings identify all relevant parties;
- Ensures the pleadings disclose proper causes of action including heads of damage, defences or cross claims, and claims for interest;
- Considers whether the pleadings should be settled by counsel; and
- When receiving the opponent's pleadings, considers the need to seek further particulars of any issues.

3.2 Drafts affidavits and statements

- Considers the evidence of the witnesses, in light of its relevance to the case and its appropriateness;
- Ensures affidavits and statements are drafted in accordance with the rules of the court; and
- Ensures affidavits and statements are drafted in admissible form.

4. Manages interlocutory stages:

4.1 Considers strategy

- Considers what process will best advance the case (such as injunctions, search orders, other interlocutory applications, pleading issues, offers of compromise, Calderbank letters); and
- Is able to respond quickly when required.

4.2 Document management

- Understands the processes and timing for discovery/disclosure in different jurisdictions.
- Considers all the documents provided by the client in terms of their relevance to the cause of action;
- Considers questions of privilege;
- Advises the client on obligations imposed in respect to any discovery orders;
- Submits the documents of the other parties to the client for instructions; and
- Considers the relevance of any discovered documents to the likely outcome of the dispute.

4.3 Interrogates

- Assesses whether interrogatories are necessary; and
- Decides what can properly be asked by critically inspecting documents and considering their relevance.

4.4 Uses subpoenas and notices to produce

- Considers the information obtained by appropriate subpoenas and notices to produce;
- Drafts precisely and relevantly the appropriate documents.

4.5 Uses notices to admit

- Considers the need for notices to admit;
- Drafts the appropriate documents;
- Upon receipt, takes instructions, considers and prepares appropriate and timely responses; and
- When answering, considers the relevance of any admissions to the likely outcome of the dispute.

4.6 Obtains expert reports

- Considers what issues need to be proved by expert evidence;
- Obtains any directions required from the court in relation to proposed expert evidence;
- Chooses and fully briefs an appropriately qualified expert;
- Notifies and understands the Expert Code of Conduct;
- Consider the issues the expert is dealing with and the admissibility of the report (e.g. with regard to the expert's specialised field of knowledge);
- Considers the report, submits it to the client and advises on its effect including whether it should be served;
- On receipt of the opponent's expert report, submits the report to the client and the client's expert for comments;
- Considers its impact on the outcome and decides whether to serve a report in reply; and

- Considers whether a conference between experts is desirable to resolve issues in contention.

4.7 Privilege

- Identifies and makes any relevant claim for privilege;
- Considers and addresses any claim for privilege by any opposing party;
- Considers the implication or nature of privilege relating to communications; and
- Considers the implication or nature of privilege relating to communication with witnesses including experts.

4.8 Acts as advocate

- Has regard to the Bench Book and UCPR and any relevant practice notes in respect to appearances;
- Is well prepared and organised when appearing as an advocate;
- Employs a knowledge of procedural, evidentiary and substantive law to present the application or the case; and
- Abides by the advocacy rules.

4.9 Acts as instructing solicitor

- Selects appropriate counsel for the matter;
- Prepares a brief including incisive observations on procedural, evidentiary and substantive issues;
- Actively participates in the preparation of the case, including attending conferences and making decisions concerning the presentation of the case, e.g. mediation, arbitration or before the court;
- Provides good administration support, including managing witnesses and documentary material and arranges any transcripts required;
- Acts as an effective liaison between counsel, the client and witnesses;
- Critically examines counsel's opinion in light of solicitor's own qualifications, experience and expertise; and
- Considers the appropriateness of taking evidence from witnesses by video link.

5. Finalises matters

- Ensures all court documents, terms of settlement and forms of judgment are properly prepared and filed;
- Seeks court approval where necessary;

- Notifies the client of all obligations arising from the conclusion of the matters including money to be paid or acts to be performed or refrained from;
- Considers an appeal, a stay or a cost application, where appropriate; and
- Seeks to agree quantum of monies payable under outstanding costs orders with opposing solicitor based on knowledge of taxation and assessment costing principles.

Knowledge Areas

Generally, the core knowledge examination paper will seek to assess a candidates' knowledge of basic legal principle rather than of the details of any particular decided cases or statutes. (It is assumed that solicitors, who have a proper understanding of basic principles will, in an office setting, be able to make specific reference to particular cases and statutes when a need arises.)

There is no one text book which covers all aspects of the program but perhaps the references, which are generally likely to prove more useful to candidates seeking to prepare for the core knowledge examination, would be the leading Australian text books on the law of contract. The examiner will not expect candidates to have any particular knowledge of sets of materials that may happen to be used in undergraduate or postgraduate courses in "litigation" in Australian Law Schools.

All candidates will be expected to demonstrate a general working knowledge of the following:

1. The identification of the contractual promise
