

Hannah Glass
Senior Associate
King & Wood Mallesons

Hannah Glass is a senior associate in the financial markets team at King & Wood Mallesons, specialising in blockchain technology, fintech and payments. Hannah works with a broad range of clients advising on the evolving legal and regulatory issues associated with the implementation and application of innovative technologies. Her work ranges from assisting start-ups to conduct global ICOs to working with large organisations to formulate smart contract based infrastructure. On the policy front, she has contributed to regulatory discussions in the blockchain and fintech space with a variety of stakeholders both in Australia and internationally.

KWM's specialist team is at the forefront of legal and technological developments in blockchain technology, having worked with governments, banks, industry bodies and start-ups around the world. In recognition of their work, the team has won the FT innovation in law awards in 4 of the last six years. KWM was also recognised as the "Most Innovative of the Year" in 2018 by the International Financial Law Review in both Australia and China.

Hannah has been named as an "Up and Coming" lawyer in the 2019 Chambers and Partners FinTech Guide. Hannah is also a fellow of the Australian Digital Commerce Association (ADCA) and a member of the US based Wall Street Blockchain Alliance's legal working group.
