

Philippe Doyle Gray
Barrister
8 Wentworth Chambers

Philippe is a barrister at 8 Wentworth Chambers in Sydney. With nearly 20 years' experience at the Bar, he maintains a diverse civil law practice, ranging from commercial and equity matters, to professional negligence, professional disciplinary matters and disputes between legal professionals and their clients regarding legal costs and disbursements. Philippe is also often briefed to advise and appear in civil litigation in which allegations of criminality, fraud, or other serious misconduct are made.

Possessing an avid interest in the law and its interaction with technology, Philippe is a forward-thinking and progressive barrister who, through technological innovation, seeks to enhance the cost-effectiveness and delivery of justice to make litigation affordable for all. He has published a book about the ethical use of technology in legal practice and has achieved professional certification in Legal Project Management both domestically and in the USA (the first barrister so certified). His recognition is evidenced by his appointment as the first lawyer practising outside North America to the Council of the American Bar Association Law Practice Division.

Philippe runs a paperless practice and has educated judges, barristers, and solicitors about the benefits of embracing technology to contribute to the just, quick, and cheap resolution of disputes. His international reach has seen Philippe regularly deliver presentations on developments in the law and topical issues in Australia and abroad, including being the first and only Australian invited by the American Bar Association to lecture at its annual legal technology conference in Chicago, TECHSHOW.
