

Justin Moses
In-House Lawyer
AIME Mentoring

Justin has been an active participant in the evolution of the Australian in-house legal sector since joining it as a graduate lawyer in 1987. Over the ensuing decades, Justin has amassed deep experience in the leadership of legal teams and change management in areas as diverse as team culture, engagement, high-performance, efficiency, innovation, technology and wellbeing.

Justin was a 30-year member of in-house legal team at Westpac Banking Corporation, the acting in a range of advisory, leadership and practice management roles that, at various times, supported each of the Westpac Group's retail, institutional and wealth management businesses.

He then joined lexvoco as a Director, Legal Operations to consult to in-house legal teams on business process improvement, before taking up his current role of In-House Lawyer with AIME Mentoring, an indigenous not-for-profit corporation focused on building mentoring bridges between universities and schools to help in overcoming educational inequality. Justin is a true believer in the power of industry-based conversations, and is a member of ACC Australia, CLOC and the AICD. He is a member of the NSW Law Society's In-House Corporate Lawyers Committee, and also participates in mentoring programs for young professionals through ACC Australia, UTS and the NSW Law Society.