

Sophie Dawson
Partner
Bird & Bird

Sophie is a partner at Bird & Bird with nearly 25 years of experience in advising on defamation and other media laws, including in a litigation context. Her work has included advising media and technology companies on significant law reform proposals including the 2005 defamation reforms. She has also acted for media companies in key litigation such as for the interveners in the Dow Jones v Gutnick High Court internet publication case, and for Nine in the Hotplate copyright proceedings against Seven.

Sophie is listed as a leading media lawyer in Best Lawyers, Chambers Asia-Pacific, Legal 500 Asia-Pacific and in Euromoney Women in Business Law. She is on the Advisory Board for the UTS Centre for Media Transition, and the Communications and Media Association Executive Committee. She is also co-author of the Thomson Looseleaf Media & Internet Law & Practice.
