

John Fleming
Solicitor, Professional Support Unit
The Law Society of NSW

John was admitted to practice in 2001. Since that time, he has spent seven years working as a litigator with the Australian Taxation Office and Australian Government Solicitors and a further seven in private practice working in the areas of tax, commercial and insolvency litigation.

John currently works as a costs lawyer with the Law Society of New South Wales, providing guidance and assistance to members of the profession in the costs area and presenting continuing legal education seminars.