

John Graves

Principal, Bradfield & Scott Lawyers

John Graves is a Commercial Lawyer providing a broad range of corporate and commercial legal services to clients across a diverse number of industries such as information technology, accountants and their clients, property and development, transport and tourism industries, and a number of others. He has extensive experience in structuring, funding and restructuring of businesses and other entities, acquisition & sale of businesses and companies, intellectual property law, competition and consumer law, property law and building, construction and development law. John is an accredited specialist of the Law Society of New South Wales in Business Law and in Property Law. John is currently the Chairman of the Examination Committee for Business Law Specialist Accreditation with the Law Society of NSW. John is the principal of Bradfield & Scott Lawyers of Hunter Street, Sydney, having previously been the Managing Partner of Ebsworth & Ebsworth and before that of Parish Patience. There is a real need for users of commercial legal services to have one lawyer who can identify their needs and provide access to a broad range of legal services, and specialists as needed. John works with his own team and with other lawyers to provide exactly that in the delivery of legal services. By his involvement in training of other lawyers, John endeavours to further meet these client needs
