

Geoff Farland

Barrister, University Chambers

After over 30 years experience as a solicitor in the commercial property and town planning area, I moved to the Bar in 2014. As a barrister I continue my passion for helping people and solving problems.

I bring to any task extensive knowledge in all aspects of the law relating to property, land use, leasing and development generally. With that knowledge and experience, I provide advice through a strategic and commercial lens.

I have provided that advice in an extra-ordinary variety of projects, whether large or small, from -

- mixed use developments to High Street retail,
- from large hospitals and medical centres, to the smallest surgery
- from regional shopping centres to the small corner store, and
- from major integrated resorts, to a small serviced apartment complex.

I am also familiar with commercial and industrial property, land/water interface proposals, valuation and compensation, and leasing generally.

I have advised government, institutional and other major landlords and investors as well as national, and many other, commercial tenants. For 12 years I led a team providing a wide range of retail leasing advice and legal portfolio management, for a global institutional client, with a NSW portfolio exceeding 20 regional and sub-regional centres.

I have also trained as a mediator, using the LEADR model.
