Online Presentations: Finding Your Communication Voice Online

Build strong presence and boost your impact through the screen during online meetings and presentations. During this session, Kim will help you to optimise your screen presence and get your message through, using voice, body language and visuality.

About Kim A. Page

Kim is a passionate communication expert with a global track record of successful client stories across Europe, the US and the Middle East by helping clients increase their executive presence and get their message through, using their voice and body language, influencing people with active listening and giving unforgettable presentations. She is a keynote and TEDx speaker and a conference moderator.

With over 20 years in the field, Kim brings a strategic perspective to her sessions and her book 'The Right Kind of Loud – Finding Your Communication Voice' is part of the curriculum at several business schools.

In the virtual space, Kim has been supporting clients to boost their impact through the screen as speakers and meeting hosts, as well as getting them ready for video creation. For organisations, she has delivered milestone celebrations as well as best practices for conferences and panel events. Kim hosts regular zoominars with communication topics in dialogue format, and her course 'The Right Kind of Loud Online' is a complete toolbox for online engagement
