

Rebecca Dunn

Partner | Gilbert + Tobin

Rebecca is a partner in Gilbert + Tobin's IP Group and a member of the firm's Cyber Response team. She is an IP litigator with over 15 years' experience in copyright, data, software, social media and trade secrets disputes. Over the course of her career, Rebecca has worked on some of the highest profile intellectual property cases in Australia in the copyright and data field both at trial and on appeal, including to the High Court of Australia.

She has expertise in the interaction of the law with rapidly developing technologies particularly in the fields of digital content, data and social media. Rebecca has worked on numerous large scale technology licensing and implementation disputes, dispute resolution procedures and alternative dispute resolution. In addition, Rebecca advises on issues relating to social media law, including defamation and consumer law issues.

Rebecca has worked on substantial cyber breach investigations, notifiable breach scenarios, privacy law compliance and disputes concerning liability for cyber breaches. She has run a number of investigations into data breaches following cyber-attacks on major Australian companies, including those leading to the first notifications to the Privacy Commissioner following the introduction of the Notifiable Data Breach scheme under the Privacy Act in 2018.

Rebecca is recognised as a leading lawyer in Asia Pacific Legal 500, Best Lawyers and Doyles Guide.

She holds a Bachelor of Arts (Communications Studies), University of Newcastle, Bachelor of Law (First Class Honours), University of Sydney and a Masters of Research, Macquarie University.
