Patrick Ng

Principal Consultant, InPlace Solutions Pty Ltd

Patrick has almost 20 years' experience within professional services, primarily 15 years as IT Director at national law firm Maddocks where he was key to how the Firm conducted its business, risk profile and operational relationships with clients. He has also consulted to manufacturers, educational institutions, retailers, property developers and tech firms and has been a guest speaker on legal tech on many occasions.

He is considered to be a frank and logical communicator with a creative yet socially sensitive approach. His industry expertise covers both strategic and operational briefs. His tech expertise covers enterprise databases, internetworking and interface design with deep point expertise in EDMS, practice management, case management and litigation related technologies.

His custom innovations include the development of sophisticated data driven publishing systems, Australia's first remote court access system, digital document review systems and development of the market leading legal full service web offering.

Patrick particularly likes well thought out, creative or innovative ideas that create new approaches to traditional challenges while also giving consideration to the future.
