

Sophia Urlich

BlueScope Steel Limited

Sophia is a budding songstress, fashionista and freestyle dancer who practises law ‘undercover’ in-house, but uses legal jargon and legislative references so regularly in her everyday life that her profession is really pretty obvious to anyone and everyone she encounters.

Sophia’s favourite things to do while working undercover in the law are stalling the progress of commercial transactions through the provision of random risk-averse commentary, policing other people’s spelling and grammar without an apparent cause, constantly querying whether things are reasonable, relevant or accurate, and arranging things in alphabetical, numerical and chronological order, just for fun.

Sophia won the People’s Choice Award in the Golden Gavel 2020 for her theatrical showcase of her then solar powered working from home set up with her esky-desk down at the beach and revisits the competition this year as someone who now literally works ‘in-house’, mostly because it is almost always raining in Sydney these days.
