

Associate Professor Michael Robertson

Medico-legal consultant, Medilaw

Associate Professor Robertson specialises in Forensic Psychiatry, Ethics and the Law in Medicine. He holds the following qualifications and accreditations: Bachelor of Medicine, Bachelor of Surgery, University of NSW (1991), Fellowship Royal Australian and New Zealand College of Psychiatrists (1998) and Doctor of Philosophy University of Sydney (2009). He is widely published and has been a Clinical Associate Professor since 2007. Associate Professor Robertson has worked with Medilaw for the past 11 years as a medico-legal consultant.

His current positions include Clinical Associate Professor (2007-current), Centre for Values, Ethics and the Law in Medicine, School of Public Health, University of Sydney and Course Coordinator (2007-current) Ethics and Mental Health Unit of Sydney Bioethics Program, University of Sydney. He was the chief investigator in a NSW Health funded study examining involuntary psychiatric treatment in the community. He has published in the area of psychological trauma, philosophy and psychiatry, and brief psychotherapy. He has interests including the depiction of psychiatry in cinema and human rights abuses perpetrated by psychiatrists under National Socialism in Germany. Associate Professor Robertson is widely published, a regularly invited presenter, a reviewer for numerous publications, and has extensive teaching experience.

THE LAW SOCIETY
OF NEW SOUTH WALES