

Jacqueline Dawson

Chair, Law Society's Specialist Accreditation Board Principal, Sexton Family Law

Jacqueline Dawson is the Principal of Sexton Family Law and an Accredited Specialist in Family Law.

Admitted to practice as a solicitor in 1994 and an Accredited Specialist since 2001, Jacqueline began practice in early 1995 with the firm then known as Robyn Sexton & Associates, and remained as a principal of the firm when Judge Sexton was appointed to the Federal Magistrates Court.

Jacqueline serves on a number of committees and was elected as a Councillor of the Law Society of New South Wales in 2021. Jacqueline has served as a member of the Specialist Accreditation Board since 2008 and was appointed Chair in January 2022. She is also the Co-chair of the Family Law Committee and a member of the Professional Conduct Committee of the Law Society.

