About Duncan Young

Duncan has been working with organisations for the past 17 years as an organisational development consultant, facilitator and executive coach. He has implemented training programs throughout Asia

Pacific and Europe across a broad range of industries and clients from both the private and public sector. One of his great strengths is being able to work effortlessly at any level of an organisation from CEO to frontline staff.

Duncan is accredited in the Myers Briggs Type Indicator, the L-Map Leadership Coaching Tool and the DISC Diagnostic System and has won numerous awards for his work. His credentials combine a diversity of education and training with practical experience. He has completed a Bachelor of Arts majoring in English Drama and a Bachelor of Dramatic Arts at the National Institute of Dramatic Arts (NIDA). He has worked as a professional actor since 1995 appearing in film, theatre and TV productions in Australia and Overseas. He was a guest speaker at TedX Sydney 2017.

In addition to being a coach, designer and facilitator Duncan is director of Duncan Young Consulting and has previously been a senior leader within large consultancies. This personal experience of management and leadership allows him to combine up to date theories on leadership with a pragmatic understanding of the real world.
