

MODERN SLAVERY STATEMENT

Reporting Period: 1 July 2024 to 30 June 2025

Prepared: November 2025

THE LAW SOCIETY
OF NEW SOUTH WALES

The Law Society of New South Wales (ACN 000 000 699) (the Law Society) has developed this Modern Slavery Statement (Statement) in line with the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) (the Act). This Statement outlines the action the Law Society has taken to identify and address modern slavery risks in the Law Society's operations and supply chains during the reporting period 1 July 2024 to 30 June 2025.

This is the sixth statement prepared by the Law Society. Our earlier statements are available on our website. The Law Society has continued to improve our modern slavery risk management framework during the reporting period.

OUR COMMITMENT AND VALUE

The Law Society is committed to responsibly assessing and addressing modern slavery risks in our operations and supply chains. We have improved, and continue to improve, our processes with the aim of taking appropriate steps to address (if required) and prevent any modern slavery in connection with our operations and supply chains.

This work is aligned with the values of the Law Society: Integrity, Teamwork and Service, which strives to enable a just and accessible legal system, guide the legal profession, and promote the rule of law. Throughout the reporting period, the Law Society has continued its advocacy work to strengthen the policy and legislative frameworks to combat modern slavery.

The Law Society respects and endorses the support for any person experiencing, or at risk of, modern slavery by the Australian Federal Police (call 131 237) and Anti-Slavery Australia (call (02) 9514 8115) and for any person in or at risk of forced marriage, My Blue Sky (call (02) 9514 8115) as well as The Salvation Army Safe House (call 1300 473 560).

INTRODUCTION

In this Statement, the term ‘modern slavery’ is used to cover eight types of serious exploitation:

Trafficking in persons	Slavery	Servitude	Forced marriage
Forced labour	Debt bondage	Deceptive recruiting for labour or services	The worst forms of child labour

OUR PROGRESS

The Law Society’s modern slavery risk management framework within the reporting period included:

- Maintaining a Modern Slavery Prevention Policy;
- Continuing to issue our Modern Slavery Questionnaire as part of our general supplier assessment of new suppliers and to existing suppliers on renewal;
- Conducting case-by-case review and assessment of suppliers for risks related to Modern Slavery and unethical conduct, where elevated risk is identified through the responses to the questionnaire;
- Continuing our advocacy work to strengthen the policy and legislative frameworks to combat modern slavery;
- Continuing, where appropriate, the inclusion of ethical conduct provisions in agreements;
- Ongoing training and awareness for the Corporate Legal Services and Secretariat Department, senior managers and key personnel.

The Law Society has made significant progress in this area and we are taking a continuous improvement approach.

OUR REPORTING ENTITY

The reporting entity for the purposes of this Statement is The Law Society of New South Wales. The Law Society and its controlled entities had consolidated revenue of more than $100 million (AUD) for the reporting period. The Law Society's controlled entity, Lawcover Insurance Pty Limited (Lawcover) meets the threshold for mandatory reporting on an individual basis. Lawcover has prepared a Modern Slavery Statement as a reporting entity in its own right. This is not a joint statement covering more than one reporting entity.

The Law Society's registered office is located at 170 Phillip Street, Sydney NSW 2000. During the reporting period, it had an additional premises at Level 4, 84 Elizabeth Street, Sydney NSW 2000. While it primarily operates in New South Wales, the Law Society also provides services to members and other practitioners located interstate and overseas. The Law Society operates with its own principal governing body, senior management group and governance structure.

OUR CORPORATE STRUCTURE

The Law Society is a company limited by guarantee which has dual representative and regulatory functions. It is a membership association which also has a broader role as co-regulator of solicitors in New South Wales.

The Law Society's corporate structure includes the following controlled entities:

- Lawcover Insurance Pty Limited
Lawcover, an APRA-regulated insurer, is the single provider of approved professional indemnity insurance policies to law practices based in New South Wales, the ACT, and the Northern Territory. It is a wholly-owned but independent subsidiary of the Law Society.
- Pro Bono Disbursement Fund Pty Ltd
The Law Society holds 50% of the issued capital of Pro Bono Disbursement Fund Pty Ltd, the corporate trustee of The Pro Bono Disbursement Trust Fund, which was established by a deed dated 21 March 2011 between that company and the Law and Justice Foundation of New South Wales for the specific purpose of reimbursing NSW legal practitioners for properly incurred disbursements in pro bono cases referred under the Pro Bono Scheme of the Law Society or a Pro Bono Scheme (as defined in the trust deed) of another body.

- Indigenous Solicitors Fund

The Indigenous Solicitors Foundation Limited (ISF) is a public company limited by guarantee incorporated on 2 June 2023. It is a not-for-profit, charitable entity that is wholly owned by the Law Society. Its purpose is to reduce the financial and cultural barriers, discrimination, isolation, or hardship experienced by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons pursuing (or wishing to pursue) a career in law. During the reporting period, this entity did not undertake any operational activities.

OUR OPERATIONS AND SUPPLY CHAINS

A. Operations

The Law Society's main operations and regulatory functions cover the following key areas:

- Providing representation for the interests of our approximately 37,000 members in New South Wales, interstate and overseas;
- Promoting professional standards, licensing solicitors to practice, investigating complaints, and administering discipline to ensure the community and the legal profession are served by ethical and responsible solicitors;
- Delivering services and communications for members, including CPD, events and publications;
- In our Sydney (NSW) headquarters, the Law Society also provides or administers the following services on-site:
  - a Library – offering a collection of publications for solicitors practising in NSW;
  - a Shop – providing legal documentation, publications and merchandise;
  - Room facilities and catering – providing mediation and arbitration rooms, visiting solicitors' rooms, functions and meetings;
  - Printing services; and
  - Catering services.

The above services require the use of goods and services provided under contracts with external suppliers, which are included in our high-level supplier risk assessment discussed in the next section of this statement.

While it primarily operates in New South Wales, the Law Society also provides services to members and other practitioners located interstate and overseas.

The Law Society currently employs 230 employees including permanent and temporary staff members.

The Law Society facilitates a hybrid working arrangement for its staff whereby staff divide their time between the Law Society's Sydney premises and working from elsewhere.

Volunteer solicitor members also contribute their expertise and experience to twenty-seven standing committees established by the Law Society Council.

During the reporting period, the Law Society continued to engage contractors for hospitality and security related activities and engaged external service providers for activities such as IT consulting, surveys, our Solicitor Outreach Service and the provision of legal and other professional services.

Lawcover's main operations cover the provision of professional indemnity insurance and risk management and claims prevention education to law practices based, or with a presence, in New South Wales, as well as law practices in the ACT and Northern Territory. Its professional indemnity services cover three inter-related areas: Claims, Practice Support Services and Insurance Services (underwriting). Lawcover's management and its small team of legal and insurance professionals and support staff operate from a Sydney office located at Level 13, 383 Kent Street, Sydney. Lawcover has a hybrid working arrangement whereby staff can work remotely for part of each week. Lawcover will produce a Modern Slavery Statement for the FY24–25 reporting period.

B. Supply chains

Our direct supply chains consists of goods and services provided by approximately 800 suppliers with whom the Law Society currently has formal agreements, which support our provision of products and services, facilities, events and functions. Suppliers have been contracted in key areas including:

- Application software;
- IT consulting services;
- IT hardware, telecom/internet and cloud services;
- Education services;
- Information subscription services;
- Research and consulting services;
- Building management and fit out services;
- Other professional services;
- Catering;
- Events;
- Sponsorship and advertising;
- Member benefits;

- Publishing; and
- Investment and banking services.

These key supplier agreements are in place with organisations with operations across Australia, the USA, India, Singapore and Ireland.

The Law Society understands that its broader supply chains are both large and complex, likely spanning a wide range of industries and geographies.

We continue to provide a Modern Slavery Questionnaire to new and existing suppliers of goods and services to the Law Society. We ask suppliers about how they manage modern slavery risks within their own operations and supply chains. We will continue to review and develop our Questionnaire as appropriate.

Lawcover's direct supply chains cover suppliers in a number of the same key areas as set out above in respect of the Law Society. These are set out in more detail in Lawcover's Modern Slavery Statement. With Lawcover's focus on the management of claims, the provision of claims prevention education and on capital management, suppliers that assist and support the company's data management activities and its investment strategy also form a key part of its supply chains.

Suppliers have been contracted in key areas including:

- Application software;
- IT professional services;
- IT hardware, telecom/internet and cloud services;
- Building management and fit out services;
- Actuarial services;
- Auditing;
- Claims handling services;
- Reinsurance and broking services;
- Other professional services;
- Events; and
- Investment and banking services.

IDENTIFICATION OF RISKS OF MODERN SLAVERY IN OUR OPERATIONS AND SUPPLY CHAINS

A. Risks within our operations:

Services provided by the Law Society are delivered by a team of skilled, professional staff primarily from our NSW offices. Australia is considered a lower risk country with respect to modern slavery (Modern slavery in Australia | Walk Free)<sup>1</sup> and the industry sector within which we operate is also considered low risk. This suggests that the risk of modern slavery practices within the Law Society's operations is likely low.

Within our operations, the Law Society acknowledges that our workforce includes employees and external contractors with temporary or voluntary work settings, immigration visas and English as a second language. While still considered low risk, these employees and external contractors may require additional assistance and information in relation to potential risks of modern slavery and human rights, and we recognise the role of the Law Society in supporting the provision of this assistance and information where required.

The Law Society also recognises the potential risks associated with the use of external suppliers for recruitment-related services. The Law Society endeavours to only engage with reputable, well-established labour-hire firms.

We understand that, despite a lower risk of modern slavery in our operations, significant changes in our workforce or service offerings in the future may result in changes to our risk profile. Should any significant changes occur, we will incorporate these into our ongoing risk assessment and management processes.

B. Risks within our supply chains:

The Law Society's direct supply chains include suppliers of goods and services used to help us operate and deliver services to our members and more broadly.

In this reporting period, almost all of our direct suppliers were organisations based in Australia, a region generally considered to be at lower risk of modern slavery. We do, however, recognise that modern slavery is still present in Australia and, as such, should be a consideration when engaging with our suppliers.

<sup>1</sup> Walk Free Foundation, Modern Slavery in Australia Available from: <https://www.walkfree.org/global-slavery-index/country-studies/australia/> (12 November 2025) 'Australia had the lowest vulnerability to modern slavery in Asia and the Pacific, and relatedly, the second lowest prevalence of modern slavery in the region.'

The small proportion of Law Society suppliers not based in Australia, within this reporting period, were based in the USA, India, and Ireland. The Law Society acknowledges that some of our suppliers are operating in countries where modern slavery risks may be more prevalent. We include a question in our Modern Slavery Questionnaire to identify the location of each counterparty.

Most of the Law Society's direct suppliers currently provide professional services such as research and consulting services, data management and IT software services, which are not identified by the International Labour Organization as associated with a high risk of modern slavery.<sup>2</sup> However, we also recognise that we liaise with suppliers across various sectors that have been considered to be at higher risk of modern slavery. Examples of sectors with more elevated risk include:

- Accommodation and food services;
- Human resources and employment services;
- Restaurants;
- Agricultural products;
- Facilities, building management and fit out services (for example cleaning and maintenance);
- Security and alarm services; and
- Electronic equipment.

In addition, the Law Society's suppliers may themselves engage with suppliers who operate within geographical regions or industries that have elevated modern slavery risks.

As part of our efforts to build an understanding and improve management of modern slavery risks, during the reporting period the Law Society further improved our supplier engagement approach. The improvements included further developing and delivering a Modern Slavery Questionnaire to suppliers on engagement or on renewal.

From consultation with Lawcover, the Law Society understands that Lawcover has a similar risk profile regarding modern slavery within its operations and supply chains to the Law Society.

Lawcover holds significant investments supporting its capital, and liabilities to policyholders. These investments are actively managed by external investment managers in accordance with Lawcover investment policy mandates, which include the integration of environmental, social and governance considerations.

The Law Society will continue to consult with Lawcover as we make improvements to our modern slavery risk management framework, and Lawcover's Modern Slavery Statement addresses these risks.

ASSESSMENT AND MITIGATION OF MODERN SLAVERY RISKS

The Law Society is committed to responsibly assessing and addressing modern slavery risks within our operations and throughout our supply chains. This commitment is supported by policies and processes, which put a framework in place for appropriate steps to address, if required, and prevent modern slavery in connection with our own operations, as well as the suppliers who work with us.

The Law Society maintains a robust Risk Management Framework (RMF), which is the totality of systems, structures, policies and processes in place to identify, assess, mitigate and monitor internal and external sources of risk that could have a material impact on the Law Society's operations. Responsibility for implementing the RMF and managing the Law Society's risks resides with the CEO, members of the senior management group and other identified "risk owners". The Chief Risk Officer prepares a quarterly report to the Law Society's Audit, Risk and Finance Committee and to the Law Society Council regarding the management of material risks, having regard to a detailed Risk and Control Register that outlines key risks that fall within material risk categories, their consequences, risk indicators, mitigating controls and additional risk monitoring and management activities. Risk mitigation plans, in respect of modern slavery risks, will form part of the Law Society's RMF and it is currently intended that these plans and actions in relation to improving our management of modern slavery risks will be periodically considered by the Audit, Risk and Finance Committee as part of its oversight of the Law Society's risk management activities.

<sup>2</sup> Minderoo Foundation Pty Ltd, The Global Slavery Index 2023. Available from: Global-Slavery-Index-2023.pdf (4 December 2025). "Modern slavery permeated industries that are characterized by informality, with higher numbers of migrant workers, and where there is limited government oversight" (p.4). "It has been found in many industries, including manufacturing, mining, and agriculture, and in many contexts, from brick kilns and fishing boats to private homes and refugee camps" (p.8). "[H]igher risk industries include catering and cleaning services, or purchase of goods at risk of being produced with forced labour such as IT equipment and corporate merchandise" (p.172).

The Law Society also has policies in place which apply to the procurement of goods and services, as well as policies with respect to recruitment, ethical standards and conduct of personnel which apply to Law Society officers, employees or contractors, including the following:

- A Modern Slavery Prevention Policy is maintained to assist the Law Society to implement processes to assess and address modern slavery risks within its operations and supply chains;
- A Whistleblower Policy is in place which reflects our commitment to provide a working environment in which employees feel able to raise issues of legitimate concern;
- A set of Professional and Personal Conduct Policies establish standards of conduct and ethical behaviour;
- An Appropriate Workplace Behaviour Policy is in place, focusing on providing equal opportunities with respect to compensation, benefits, promotions, development and other employment conditions, and on promoting a safe, healthy, and productive working environment for all Law Society employees;
- A Performance Management and Disciplinary Action Policy has been set up with the aim of ensuring a fair, consistent and legally correct approach to disciplinary matters, as well as encouraging improvement in behaviour and promoting fairness in the workplace.

The Law Society aims to leverage these policies and procedures to promote awareness, identification, and reporting mechanisms to manage modern slavery risks.

In addition, the Law Society recognises the opportunity to use our supplier negotiations as a channel to build awareness of modern slavery risks, as well as our expectations regarding how they are managed in our supply chains.

These negotiations occur at the commencement of the contract and, to a lesser extent, on renewal.

The selection of suppliers by the Law Society is initially managed by the relevant individual Department heads (e.g. IT Services, Library, Events) on a case-by-case basis. Once the supplier is at contract stage, it is then assessed by the Law Society's Corporate Legal Services and Secretariat Department, prior to the signing and commencement of an agreement.

During the reporting period, the Law Society's procurement process again included a Modern Slavery Questionnaire for response by suppliers or a review of the supplier's own Modern Slavery Statement (if available).

The Law Society is not aware of, and has not received any reports, of incidents of modern slavery in our above operations or supply chains during the FY24–25 reporting period. Where an incident is brought to the Law Society's attention, the management team will assess the nature and scale of the incident and engage with the appropriate parties to clarify and seek to remediate the issue. We seek to include an ethical conduct provision in our agreements which gives the Law Society termination rights.

Lawcover has well-developed systems and processes in relation to procurement and audits of suppliers.

EVALUATION OF THE EFFECTIVENESS OF OUR ACTIONS

We commenced our activities from a strong starting point during the FY24–25 reporting period and have taken steps during this reporting period to further improve our processes and framework. Particularly, we have:

- Maintained a Modern Slavery Prevention Policy;
- Continued to include ethical conduct provisions in our agreements;
- Continued to review and improve our Modern Slavery Questionnaire;
- Made a submission to the Law Council of Australia to inform the Attorney-General's Department's Consultation Paper, Enhancing civil protections and remedies for forced marriage; and
- Engaged with the NSW Government on issues relating to modern slavery and victims' rights.

CONSULTATION WITH OUR INTERNAL STAKEHOLDERS AND CONTROLLED ENTITIES

The Law Society's approach to managing modern slavery risks for the FY24–25 reporting period has been developed in consultation with key stakeholders across our organisation.

Throughout the process of developing this Statement, the Law Society also engaged and consulted with our most significant subsidiary, Lawcover, and presented this Statement for review and comment to Lawcover's Executive officers, including its Chief Legal Officer. Lawcover has also produced its own Modern Slavery Statement for this reporting period.

OTHER INFORMATION

Future action:

As part of our commitment to address modern slavery risks in our operations and supply chains, we will continue to improve our internal modern slavery risk management framework. We are committed to regularly reviewing relevant policies and procedures.

Actions that we commit to taking by the completion of our next reporting period include:

- Ongoing training sessions on modern slavery for relevant personnel;
- Continuing to undertake a supplier risk assessment for newly engaged direct suppliers of the Law Society;
- Continuous improvement of our practices such as regular reviews and updates to the Modern Slavery Questionnaire;
- Actively monitoring and engaging with any updates in law and in best practice, particularly, stemming from the Report of the statutory review of the Act by Professor John McMillan, AO,<sup>3</sup> the Australian Government response to the review<sup>4</sup> and the establishment of the Australian Anti-Slavery Commissioner.<sup>5</sup> These actions will allow the Law Society to make continual progress in ensuring the effective management of modern slavery risks.

We confirm that this Statement complies with the mandatory criteria of section 16 of the Act as set out in the Annexure.
